Re: New ANAB Web Sites

As you may have already noticed, ANAB has a new Web site at our old location, www.anab.org. While much of the content remains the same, some elements have been reorganized and revised. We're confident that the site looks more appealing and up to date, and our hope is that the site is also easy to navigate for both experienced users and new visitors.

At the same time the new ANAB site was launched, the ANSI-ASQ National Accreditation Board also launched a new site for the ACLASS brand at www.aiclasscorp.com.

Now we've added a third site at www.accreditme.org. This serves as a portal site for the ANAB and ACLASS brands and the brands of our two parent companies. Depending on which logo you click, the site will quickly take you to ANAB, ACLASS, ANSI, or ASQ. Although it is a simple, single-page site, it's an important representation of the common interests and increased cooperation among our brands.
